Email: michael.a.smith@villanova.edu

Dr. Michael A. Smith is currently an Assistant Professor in the Department of Chemical Engineering at Villanova University. He received his BS in Chemical Engineering from Lafayette College in 1980, then worked in a variety of assignments with the DuPont Company for just shy of 17 years. Dr. Smith returned to school to obtain a Masters at Villanova University, then obtained his PhD in Chemical Engineering from the University of Delaware in 2004 working with Prof Raul Lobo. Before joining Villanova in 2006, he has worked as a research scientist for an SBIR startup investigating adsorption applications for porous carbons. Dr. Smith's research interests include the synthesis and characterization of porous, nanostructured materials, and heterogeneous catalysis.
